PREFACE

The Fishes, whose genealogy is given in these pages, are said to be the descendants of a family of that name who, emigrating from Normandy with William the Conqueror, landed in England in 1066. That the Fishes settled in the North of England is highly probable, not only from the fact that history records how William the Conqueror suppressed uprisings in the North of England in the years 1068 and 1069, harassing Northumberland, and again in 1070, driving back the Scottish King, but also from the fact that several of the older members of the Fish family given here were born in Carlisle, in the County of Cumberland, which is situate in the North of England, and which is familiarly known as the "Border City."

For six generations of the Fish family it is said that the eldest son had been named Luke, and, strange as it may seem, each had married a woman whose Christian name was Margaret. This custom, however, was broken by Luke Fish, Jr., born in Carlisle, England, May 22, 1787. He married a woman by the name of Mary, and their eldest son was christened William, though their fifth child was named Luke Sidney.

Little is known about the ancestors of Luke Fish, Sr., and the only one of the family of which he was a member, of whom anything is known, was Mary Fish, his sister, who was born in Stanwix, Carlisle, England, in the year 1756. She was unmarried, and taught a private school in Stanwix up to the time advancing years compelled her to relinquish the work. She died in 1848, in her 93d year.

Although the Fish family is scattered over all the seas, it is not recorded in these pages that there were any whales among them, though there were many schools of little Fishes.

LUKE FISH, SR.

Luke Fish, Sr., was born in the year 1760, in Stanwix, Cumberland County, England. Nothing definite is known about his parents, except that his mother, whose maiden name was Margaret Rutherford, came from the Borderland, a name given to the immediate vicinity of the old Roman wall that divided England from Scotland. Luke Fish, Sr., married Margaret Smith, who was born in London, England, of aristocratic parents. Luke was a carriage maker—a working man—a fact which did not please her parents, and because she insisted on marrying him they disowned her. Though it was a mesalliance, Luke made her a good home and living, and they were happy together. Her parents were never reconciled. She died in England in the year 1804. Luke Fish, Sr., came to America, where he died in Shelby County, Ohio, January 22, 1844, aged 84 years. Their children are:—

- 1—MARGARET, who was born in England, and who died at Dalston, near Carlisle, England, aged 36 years. She was unmarried.
- 2—LUKE, JR., born May 22, 1787, in Carlisle, England; died October 19, 1866, in Shelby County, Ohio, aged 79 years.
- 3—WILLIAM, born in England, and a tailor by trade. He came to America, but sometime afterward all trace of him was lost, as he ceased correspondence. It is said he was shot in Canada, and it is not known whether he left a family or not.
- 4—JOHN, who was born in England, and who died in England while yet young.
- 5—HANNAH, born in England in the year 1797, and died on January 1, 1839, in Shelby County, Ohio, at the age of 42 years. She was unmarried.
- 6—EDWARD, born in England March 24, 1802; died December 3, 1886, in Sidney, Shelby County, Ohio, aged 84 years.

LUKE FISH, JR.

Luke Fish, Jr., was the second child of Luke, Sr., and Margaret Fish, and was born in Carlisle, England, May 22, 1787. He was twice married, and by his first wife, Mary Graham, who was born in Carlisle, England, April 11, 1795, and died in Shelby County, Ohio, April 18, 1852, he had twelve children. His second marriage occurred in February, 1859. Luke Fish, Jr., emigrated from England in the year 1818, and settled on a farm near Dayton, Ohio, in 1819, remaining in Montgomery County for nineteen years. Of his twelve children, nine were born in the log house on the old farm. The country at that time was sparsely settled, and in 1803 Montgomery County had only been incorporated. In 1805, the estimated population of Cincinnati was but 960, and transportation was by canal boat on the Great Miami River. Thus pioneer life in those days was one of privation and weary toil. Luke Fish, Jr., delighted and excelled in fruit culture, and had two orchards and two vineyards on his last farm. His eldest son, William, in after years, pointed out with pride the orchard he himself had planted. In 1838 he moved to a farm in Shelby County, Ohio, four miles from Sidney. Weaving jeans on the handloom was part of the early settler's life, and fell mostly to the mother's lot, and of this Mary Fish had her share. She was a Christian woman, sweet and patient in the effort to make home comfortable. She died suddenly of paralysis, aged 57 years, leaving a sister, Jane Nogal, and a brother, William Graham, who lived near Dayton, but who are now dead. After an illness of only four days, Luke Fish, Jr., died in Sidney, Shelby County, Ohio, on October 17, 1866, aged 79 years. His remains were followed to the tomb by the largest concourse of friends ever witnessed in that part of the country, he having been one of its pioneers. For the last forty-five years of his life he had an abiding faith, and zealously supported the doctrines of the Methodist Church. His house was the home at all times of the itinerary preachers of that church. In the early part of his life he was inclined to infidelity, but upon reading "Newton on the Prophecies" he was convinced that the Bible was the word of God. About the year 1821 or 1822 he was influenced by Michael Marlay and Joseph Park to join them in the moral reform in which they were so zealously engaged. His children are:—

- 1—WILLIAM, born November 24, 1814.
- 2—MARGARET, born November 11, 1816.
- 3—THOMAS, born December 2, 1818.
- 4—ELIZABETH, born March 18, 1821.
- 5—LUKE SIDNEY, born March 31, 1823.
- 6—EDWARD, born August 7, 1825.
- 7—MARY JANE, born August 15, 1827.
- 8—JAMES, born August 28, 1829.
- 9—GEORGE WASHINGTON, born February 22, 1832.
- 10—HANNAH, born July 16, 1834.

- 12—SARAH, born May 28, 1838.

WILLIAM FISH

William Fish was the first child of Luke, Jr., and Mary Fish, and was born in Carlisle, England, on November 24, 1814. He was in his fifth year when he came to America with his parents, who settled on a farm near Dayton, Ohio, in 1819. Early put to work, his only education was obtained by reading by the light of the fire in the chimney corner such books as he could obtain. He worked on the farm, and learned to weave on the handloom at home, making clothing for the family, until he was twenty years of age. Leaving the farm about 1835, with only a suit of jeans and little money, he went to Dayton, Ohio, to enter upon life's struggles, where he found work in a woolen mill. Wool was exchanged for yarns, jeans and flannels. He remained in Dayton until 1839, when he moved to his father's farm in Shelby County, Ohio. Revived work in the mills induced William to go to Dayton again in 1841, remaining there till 1847, when he went to Springfield, Ohio, working in a woolen mill eleven hours a day. Times were hard on account of the panic. Seventy-five cents a day was called good pay then, and money could not be had. Then followed the cholera scourge, William being stricken, but lived to bless the name of Mary Buvinger, who took his family to her home in Dayton, providing for them through the Winter. William's knowledge of the loom and woolen business, and his integrity, obtained for him the confidence of Christopher Slagle, of London, Ohio, who put him in charge of a mill he had erected. Thence he moved in the Spring of 1850 and began his career as a business man. Being successful, and desiring to branch out, he returned to Springfield in the Spring of 1854. Renting a place, with machinery, from Charles Rabbits, he, with the assistance of his older children, began working stocking yarn the first year, running day and night. In 1855 he entered into partnership with Mr. Rabbits, under the firm name of "Rabbits & Fish," but dissolved it to branch out further, and in February, 1859, moved to Dayton again, taking with him his own machinery. The sign: "William Fish, Dayton Woolen Mill"—was known far and wide. He continued the business up to the time of his death, which occurred on January 15, 1867, in Cleveland, Ohio, where he had gone for treatment for paralysis. He was buried in the Fish lot in Woodland Cemetery, Dayton, Ohio. He was a good Christian, temperate in all things, and generously gave to the church, the poor, and to the many calls made upon him during the Civil War of 1861 to 1865. He was a staunch Republican and an Anti-Slavery man, and often assisted runaway slaves to escape by the "underground railroad." William was married in Dayton, Ohio, on October 17, 1837, to Catharine Buvinger, who was born in Hanover, Pennsylvania on July 18, 1818. She was about seventeen years of age when she moved to Ohio with her parents, traveling by canal boat and stage, the only means of transportation at that time. She endured bravely the ups and downs of her married life, always hopeful, and withal a good Christian wife and mother. At the death of her husband she continued his business, with the aid of two sons-in-law, until 1872, when she closed it out and went to Cleveland, Ohio, April 7, 1873, with her four youngest children. She died in the full faith of a Christian hope on January 5, 1890, in Cleveland, Ohio, and was buried in the Fish lot in Woodland Cemetery, Dayton, Ohio. Their children are:

LEONARD AND MARY BUVINGER.

Leonard Buvinger, Jr., was the son of Leonard, Sr., and Mary Buvinger, and was born in Strausburg, Franklin County, Pennsylvania, on October 25, 1792.

Leonard Buvinger, Sr., died July 21, 1794, and was buried in Green Castle, Franklin County, Pennsylvania. He married Mary Bucher. Leonard Buvinger, Jr., settled in Dayton in 1833, and built the first brick house on what was called the "Buck lot." He was a shoemaker by trade, his shop being on the house lot. He served in the war of 1812. He was married on December 14, 1817, to Mary Snyder, who was born in Hanover, York County, Pennsylvania, July 1, 1800, and died in Dayton, Ohio, February 19, 1868. "Uncle Leonard" and "Aunt Polly," as they were called, were universally loved, not only by their children and grandchildren, but by all who knew them. They were good staunch Methodists, and their doors were always open to the needy. They had eleven children, and four sons served in the Civil War of 1861 to 1865, all surviving the conflict. Leonard, Jr., died in Dayton, Ohio, February 16, 1870, and was buried in Woodland Cemetery. Mary Buvinger's name is a familiar one in the annals of early Methodism in Dayton, she being one of the original members of Raper Chapel. Her early education was in another branch of the Christian church, but in 1827, notwithstanding bitter opposition from her friends, she resolved to unite with the Methodist Episcopal Church. She was a member of the first class meeting organized in Hanover, Pennsylvania, and passed through many trying scenes of persecution, as in that day did most of those who joined Methodism in that region of the country. Being the only family of German descent among the Methodists of Dayton at that time, their house was the home of the first German missionaries, as well as of the English ministers. Mary Buvinger was a faithful member of the pastor's class. Her last illness was protracted and her sufferings great, but she was always calm and peaceful, and died February 19, 1868, in her sixty-eighth year. She was buried in Woodland Cemetery, Dayton, Ohio. Mary Buvinger was the daughter of Jacob and Catharine Snyder. Jacob Snyder was born in Somerset County, Pennsylvania, September 22, 1777, and died in Dayton, Ohio, July 11, 1854. He married on August 7, 1796, in Hanover, York County, Pennsylvania, Catharine Relsinger, who was born at Hanover, February 14, 1777, and died in Dayton, Ohio, July 30, 1840.

with the educational institutions of the district in which he lived. He married Hannah Carrick, who was born in England January 25, 1797, and died in Sidney, Shelby County, Ohio, April 12, 1881, aged 84 years. THE FAMILY OF NICHOLAS FISH.

NICHOLAS FISH

Nicholas Fish, who was the first child of Edward and Hannah Fish, was born in England, December 9, 1822, and died at 9 East Tower Street, Carlisle, England, September 9, 1865, aged 43 years. He was early put to work as a weaver, having a handloom in the house in which he lived, and in later years was employed as a pattern worker in Dixon's factory, West Tower Street, Carlisle. He was a man of great strength of character, and for many years was in regular attendance at the Bible Class conducted by the Dean of Carlisle. His death occurred under very pathetic circumstances. His daughter, Margaret, was taken sick with typhoid fever, being too ill to be removed from home, while four other children, Mary, Jane, David and Isabella, were taken to the hospital with the same fever. While they were there, he died at home. The only likeness of Nicholas Fish was an oil painting, lifesize, executed especially for his father in America, and though sent from England with a friend of the family, it never reached its destination. Nicholas Fish married

Hannah Losh, born March 10, 1824, in Cockermouth, England. She was a worthy mother of a large family. During the life of her husband she was the main source of supply for all his "bobbins," working the spinning wheel while nursing her children or attending to her household duties, and often sitting at the loom herself. She struggled hard to give her children a common school education, denying herself many of the necessities of life in order to do so. In looks Hannah Fish was a splendid old woman, but grander still in character, and was an ideal and good Christian mother. She died in Padiham, Lancashire, England, on April 4, 1904, aged 80 years. Their children are:—

- 1—EDWARD DUNCOMBE, born October 21, 1844.
- 2—MARY, born December 6, 1845.
- 3—JOHN, born September 19, 1847.
- 4—JANE, born September 2, 1849.
- 5—MARGARET, born August 30, 1851.

- 9—WILLIAM, born November 3, 1858.
- 10—LAWSON FREDERICK, born December 2, 1860.
- 11—ANN, born February 3, 1864.
- 12—HANNAH, born March 14, 1865.

EDWARD DUNCOMBE FISH was the first child of Nicholas and Hannah Fish, and was born in Carlisle, England, October 21, 1844. He received a common school education and was apprenticed when about 15 years of age to the printing and lithographing business. Before he had finished his apprenticeship his master was declared a bankrupt, releasing Edward Duncombe, who went to Liverpool, England, as a turn-over apprentice, where he succeeded in getting employment with a firm publishing a daily list of stock quotations. It was Edward Duncombe's duty to go to the Exchange for the quotations, and he was often requested to write a few lines giving the condition of the market for the day, which were the means of securing for him a place in a broker's office, and eventually being placed on the Exchange as a buyer and seller for the house of Colonel Tilney. On the death of Colonel Tilney, Edward Duncombe, because he was not taken in as a partner, started business for himself as a stock and share broker on April 15, 1882, with an office in 15 Hackin's Hey, Liverpool, and was successful up to his untimely death. Crossing from Liverpool to Birkenhead on the underground railway that tunnels the River Mersey, he was accidentally killed at the Birkenhead side while on his way home, December 31, 1895. He was a Liberal in politics, and took an active part in the formation of the Liberal Club in the Old Chester Road Music Hall, Birkenhead. As a member of the Wesley Chapel in that town he joined in the various movements connected with church life, especially taking an interest in the Wesley Literary Society, before which he read several papers on natural history. Edward Duncombe was also a member of the Birkenhead Literary and Scientific Society and the Liverpool Field Naturalists' Society, frequently lecturing to the farmers in South West Lancashire on insect pests and how to deal with them. He was Vice-president of the Liverpool, England, Entomological Society in 1884, and as Vice-president of the Tranmere Rovers' Football Club he gave it unstinted support. He married Caroline Hutchinson, who was born July 14, 1846, in Liverpool, Lancashire, England. She was a daughter of a Liverpool Custom House Officer. Their children are:—

father, the family moved into the North-east Division of Lancashire, locating in White Lee, near Burnley. While there David was employed in the warehouse of a cotton mill at Higham. His mother, not satisfied with her son being in a mill, sought a place for him in Padiham, where he learned the business of job printing, bookbinding and machine ruling, working with the same employer as apprentice and journeyman for over eleven years. During his stay in Padiham David obtained second class certificates at the Science and Art examinations held by the Council on Education in England, May 5 and 7, 1875, in the subjects of Physical Geography and Animal Physiology. The club also presented the parents and husband and child with the following memorial, beautifully engrossed:—

"IVY CLUB MEMORIAL."

"To put upon memory's page a memorial that will not fade and soften our personal bereavements to a sacred memory.

"This life was so blended with ours, causing hearts to beat in unison like sweet music in holy diapason.

"We approach this tender service, asking how we shall pay a just tribute to a friend so dear, who was one of the brightest and best loved in our circle; one who was always cheerful and ever mindful of the happiness of others, as well as enduring the hardships which compose 'Life's Battle March.'

"Endowed with the true spirit of womanhood at the altar of home—where her light shone the brightest—making the sweet companionship of wife, mother or friend a heaven of hope in a stormy sea.

"To the shrine of her memory will we ever go to pay our homage; to the stricken husband and child, father, mother and brothers we can offer only the companionship of a sympathetic heart, ever believing that the sweet blending of our lives with dear ones upon this earth is but an earnest of what will be in the Great Hereafter.

"There is no death; what seems so is transition.

This life of mortal breath
Is but a suburb of the life Elysian, Whose portals are death."
